Productive Aging in China: Toward Evidence-based Practice and Policy

老有所为在中国的发展：实证,实践与实策

Peking University, Beijing

August 9-11, 2011

In the face of current demographic challenges, productive engagement of older adults is a strategy to strengthen families and communities while simultaneously promoting the health of older adults. Policies and programs that support productive engagement of older adults can be adapted across countries and cultures. The evidence base for effectiveness can be strengthened, and successful models can be disseminated more widely.

Scholars, professionals, and government officials interested in societal aging will come together to advance research and knowledge to promote a productive aging society. The focus of the conference will be on strategies to (1) support older caregivers/grandparents, (2) engage older adults as workers and volunteers, (3) provide life-long education and training, and (4) encourage social entrepreneurship. Outcomes will include advancement of an applied research agenda, innovative development of knowledge and skills among participants, and partnerships to advance research, programs, and policies.
