Key findings of PolyU's image survey 2003

Background — The University commissioned an independent research agency to conduct an image and identity survey in late 2003 to gauge PolyU's image in the eyes of public. This followed two similar exercises conducted in 1994 and 1999.

Methodology — The survey was made up of a quantitative and a qualitative phase. A total of 708 sampled respondents were interviewed.

 Quantitative – conducted through questionnaire survey with the following:

| Types of Respondents          |
|-------------------------------|
| Recruiters                    |
| PolyU Alumni                  |
| Current PolyU Staff           |
| Current PolyU Students        |
| Parents of F.4 – F.7 Students |
| F.4 – F.7 Students            |
|                               |

• Qualitative – through in-depth interviews with the following:

| Types of Respondents                                 |   |
|--|---|
| Secondary School Principals/Counsellors/Teachers |   |
| Community Leaders                                    |   |
| Government Officials                                 |   |
| LegCo Members/Opinion Leaders                        | S |
| Recruiters   |   |

Major findings

- PolyU graduates were regarded by recruiters as the most preferred graduates for recruitment (35% of recruiter respondents ranked PolyU graduates as first choice for recruitment in 2003 vs 18% in 1999).
- PolyU was again rated first by recruiters in producing graduates of the highest practical value to employers (43% of recruiter respondents regarded PolyU graduates as most practical in 2003 vs 34% in 1999).
- PolyU attained the highest rating for its "practicality of courses in relation to career development" (77% of respondents rated PolyU as excellent / very good in this aspect).
- PolyU has become one of the top three choices among secondary school students in their selection of tertiary institutions for further study.
- While the 'Preferred Graduate' Development Programme (PGDP) was highly praised by recruiters, the Leadership and Competence for Success Programme (LCSP) was highly commended by PolyU staff and students.
- PolyU's progress and achievements over the past five years were more widely recognized when compared with 1999. A total of 62% of all respondents agreed that PolyU had made progress over the recent few years and the most prominent progress recognized by these respondents was in the area of academic reputation.
- More respondents than in 1999 regarded PolyU as a tertiary institution with a long history, which helped create a better image for the University.
- PolyU's achievements in technological research development also won high recognition.
