

Social Transition Dilemma in China and Social Policy Responses

Prof. Sibin Wang

Sociology Department, Peking University
China Association of Social Work Education

July 20, 2007 Hong Kong

Reform and Opening: Radical Social Transition in China

- Market-oriented Reform in China
- Radical Social Transition in China: “The Second Revolution”

Challenges during Social Transition

- Dynamic and Mechanism of Reform
- Problems and Challenges during Social Transition

Problems and Challenges during Social Transition

- Economic Increase and Development Problems
- Unfair Benefits Distribution with Market-oriented Reform and Marginalization of Particular Groups
- Unemployment and Reform
- Problems in Rural Areas of China, “Disappearing of Peasant”?

Social Transition and the Development of Social Policy

- Market-oriented Transformation and the Lag of Social Policy
- Social Policies for the Most Vulnerable Groups in China
- Development of Social Policies in China: Seeking Balance between Economic Increase and Social Justice

Development of Social Policies in China

- Promoting Employment and Social Security in Urban Areas
- Economic-social Policy in Rural Areas

The Promising Role of Social Work in Promoting the Development of Social Policy and Social Justice in China

- Social Policy Implementation and Problems
- The Significance of Social Work in Social Policy Implementation and Social Development

吉祥

Epilogue: Seeking Social Harmony with New Wisdom

Thank you!

吉祥如意