Objectives

Ample research indicates that there are many developmental needs of university students who are usually regarded as the leaders of tomorrow. Unfortunately, amongst university subjects on leadership, few subjects include notions underscoring the importance of “soft skills” (e.g., social competence, emotional competence, spirituality, morality, resilience, etc.) which are becoming increasingly important for leaders in today’s society. Globalization calls for the need for mobility across roles, industries, and locations; therefore, equipping graduates with both hard and soft skills which are transferrable and applicable to their life-long pursuit as leaders is of emerging importance. The subject is designed to enable students to learn and integrate theories, research and concepts of the basic personal qualities (particularly intra-personal and interpersonal qualities) of effective leaders within the Chinese context. This subject also intends to train students to develop and reflect on their intra-personal and interpersonal qualities. Finally, the subject promotes the development of an active pursuit of knowledge on personal qualities in leadership amongst students.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the subject, students will be able to:

a. understand and integrate theories, research and concepts on the basic qualities (particularly intra-personal and interpersonal qualities) of effective leaders in the Chinese context;

Teaching/Learning Methodology

Students taking this course are expected to be sensitive to their own behaviors in the intra-personal and interpersonal contexts. Both intellectual thinking and experiential learning are emphasized in the course. Some case studies on successful and fallen leaders will also be covered in the course. The teaching/learning methodology includes:

1. Lectures;
2. Experiential learning sessions;
3. Group project; and
4. Written assignment.

In addition to lecturing, students will also engage in experiential learning activities such as discussions and debates on critical issues central to leadership, role-plays of situations faced by leaders, problem-based cases to solve, demonstrations, questionnaires, games and simulations. Through experimenting and practicing, students will be able to reflect on the experience to better assimilate, conceptualize and apply knowledge in a more practical way.

To enable students to meet the “EW” requirement, students will be required to view a short lecture series available online provided by ELC. The series aims at equipping students with writing skills to enable them to write more effectively in English. Students are also required to submit two online drafts of the same piece of extensive writing to staff of ELC in order to gain feedback regarding their writing. The submissions will allow ELC staff to assess the progress made by students in the writing process and the quality of their work.

To enable students to meet the “ER” requirement, ELC has also developed an interactive online learning kit that students can take voluntarily. The kit comprises resources that will enhance students’ reading skills. Students are also expected to study the prescribed readings on the Reading List and to complete their Term Paper designed to assess their reading abilities.

Explanation of the appropriateness of the assessment methods in assessing the intended learning outcomes:

1. Assessment of Class Participation/Preparation: It is expected that classroom activities and preparation for lectures can help students understand the subject matter and oneself, develop social skills, connect learning to oneself and promote an appreciation of the importance of intrapersonal and interpersonal leadership qualities. Hence, marks for class participation and preparation for lectures will be given. Students will be assessed by: a) preparation for class (e.g., prepare questions and dig up materials before class), b) participation in class (e.g., completion of worksheets and sharing) and c) volunteering to answer questions and join discussions in class.

2. Peer Assessment: Students will be invited to rate the performance and learning of other group members in an honest and authentic manner. The marks will reflect the mastery of knowledge, self-reflection and quality of interpersonal skills (such as collaboration with other members and contribution to the group) of the group members. Peer assessment will contribute to marks in class participation. A peer assessment marking rubric is attached in Appendix A.

3. Assessment of Group Project: Group project can give an indication of the students’ understanding and integration of theories and concepts on personal qualities in effective leadership, personal and group reflections, interpersonal skills and degree of recognition of the importance of active pursuit of knowledge covered in the course.

4. Assessment of Individual Assignment: To enable students to meet the “ER” requirement, students are required to read the prescribed readings (100,000 words or 200 pages). For “EW” requirement, students are required to produce a term paper with a minimal length of 2,500 words in English. Individual paper can give an indication of the students’ understanding and integration of theories and concepts on the personal qualities in effective leadership, self-assessment, self-reflection, connection of the subject matter to oneself and degree of recognition of the importance of active pursuit of knowledge covered in the course.
