Intended Learning Outcomes

(Not 1)

Upon completion of the subject, students will be able to:

1. (a) Describe the history of Hong Kong from 1841 to the present, with topical coverage of cultural, political, social, and economic issues
2. (b) Identify the dynamics of major events sufficient to indicate the historical uniqueness of Hong Kong
3. (c) Discuss the developments of Hong Kong in the context of Chinese history, British colonial history, and world history
4. (d) Interpret and analyze the major current issues in Hong Kong from multiple Perspectives
Apply the knowledge obtained from the course to self-examination and future career
Read with greater comprehension (ER)
Write a book report (EW)
Study more effectively

Please explain how the stated learning outcomes relate to the following three essential features of GUR subjects: Literacy, Higher order thinking, and Lifelong learning

The stated learning outcomes relate to the three essential features, namely literacy, higher order thinking, and life-long learning in the following ways:

During the course, students are required to read and write extensively and intensively. As a result, their ability to locate relevant reference sources and follow an argument or line of reasoning will be developed; such ability ultimately enables them to write effectively. Also students will be required (and guided in the process) to write a book report of at least 2,500 words, their writing ability can be reasonably improved particularly with the aid of ELC writing supportive activities. [Intended outcomes: (f), (g) and (h)]

A goal of this course, which is currently included in the domain of historical judgment by the GEC, is to show students how history can explain the present on the grounds that history is subject to ever-changing interpretations and thus an arena of endless disagreements and challenges. Over the course, students will be introduced to the ways historians have approached the history of Hong Kong and will be encouraged to observe that there can be more than one interpretation of historical events. Students need to identify the most appropriate interpretation in the context of historical background and development. Upon completion of the course students will be better equipped to think analytically and critically about the historical issues confronting Hong Kong since the colonial era. [Intended outcomes: (a), (b), (c) and (d)]

In addition to the focus on historical events, the course explores the complex relationships between Chinese and Western cultural traditions. As a result, students will be taught in what ways Chinese traditional belief systems have changed in response to contemporary challenges and how the values and norms originating in Chinese and Western cultures and traditions have contributed to the profound social, political, cultural, and economic transformations that Hong Kong has been experiencing since the establishment of British rule. The ways of thinking engendered by this course will be of particular significance to students in terms of strengthening their ability to adapt to novelty and an ever-changing world. [Intended outcomes: (c), (d) and (e)]

Subject Synopsis/Indicative Syllabus

Instead of simply focusing on what had happened in the past, the following topics will be taught in analytical and critical manners using multiple sources expressing different viewpoints, as a way to enable students to nourish the related abilities.

1. Introduction
2. Opium trade in the Early Colonial Era
3. The Establishment of the Colonial System
4. Emergence of the Chinese Elite
5. The People's Livelihood in the Pre-war Era
| 6. | Japanese Occupation and its Impact |
| 7. | Postwar Social and Economic Transformations: Trading Port, Manufacturing Industries, and Financial Center |
| 8. | East Meets West: The World of Suzie Wong |
| 9. | Reunion with China |

Teaching/Learning Methodology

(Note 3)

Lectures:
This subject will be taught primarily using a lecture format. To support this with an aim towards both alignment and relevancy, lectures will closely follow the assigned reading. Students will be taught to how to scan the reading material before attending the lecture so that they are better prepared for the lecture and to question unclear concepts within it. The questions raised due to lack of understanding or interest will be dealt during the class time. To further motivate students to develop their interest in the course and learn as much as they can, I will make use of different teaching materials such as documentaries, music, and paintings in addition to lecturing in a conventional format.

Individual Study:

Students will be expected to complete the remainder of the 56 to 86 hours required for each credit hour earned individually. Most of such effort should be devoted to reading. Since this may be an area of weakness for Hong Kong students, clear guidelines and checks will be put in place to ensure that it occurs. The emphasis in this subject on reading comprehension is designed to give the student an essential experience of empowerment in learning to study effectively.

Writing:

As a "Writing Intensive" subject, students will be required to produce a substantial paper (a book report), which will undergo several drafts, the first to be submitted by mid-semester, supervised by the ELC. Two grades will be assigned, one by the ELC teacher based upon an assessment of the student's participation in the drafting process (worth 10% of the total subject grade) and one by the subject teacher based on content (worth 40% of the total subject grade). The final version will be accompanied with a copy of the first draft to assess "progress".

Cultural Study Tours:

Cultural study tours will be incorporated as part of the course requirements. Because of this learning component, students can go beyond the classroom and PowerPoint slides to see and experience for themselves what they have been exposed to in lectures.

Assessment Feedback:

Since students can learn more effectively by getting timely feedback from the teacher, consultation will be specifically designed to identify students who are having difficulty, thus allowing the opportunity to intervene.

Learning to Learn:

Strengthening student learning skills is most effective when done in the context of interesting and relevant content material. This subject will make use of a number materials from the PolyU’s Learning to Learn Project, previously funded by the UGC and developed under the aegis of the EDC, such as the Learning Review Table and the Question Guide, both to encourage students to engage in the questioning process and to transfer those skills to other classes.

Note 1: Intended Learning Outcomes
Intended learning outcomes should state what students should be able to do or attain upon completion of the subject. Subject outcomes are expected to contribute to the attainment of the overall programme outcomes.

Note 2: Subject Synopsis/Indicative Syllabus
The syllabus should adequately address the intended learning outcomes. At the same time over-crowding of the syllabus should be avoided.

Note 3: Teaching/Learning Methodology
This section should include a brief description of the teaching and learning methods to be employed to facilitate learning, and a justification of how the methods are aligned with the intended learning outcomes of the subject.

Note 4: Assessment Method
This section should include the assessment method(s) to be used and its relative weighting, and indicate which of the subject intended learning outcomes that each method purports to assess. It should also provide a brief explanation of the appropriateness of the assessment methods in assessing the intended learning outcomes.
