An approximate bundle method with applications

A.M. Bagirov

CIAO, School of Information Technology and Mathematical Sciences, University of Ballarat, Victoria, 3353, Australia.

We present a new method for solving nonsmooth optimization problems. This is a derivative-free method. We demonstrate the application of the proposed method for solving supervised and unsupervised data classification problem, where the method allows one to significantly reduce the computational effort. We also present results of numerical experiments using test problems of nonsmooth optimization.