The Hong Kong Polytechnic University

Subject Description Form

Please read the notes at the end of the table carefully before completing the form.

Subject Code	APSS1BN12
Subject Title	Media and Everyday Life
Credit Value	3
Level	1
GUR Requirements Intended to Fulfill	This subject intends to fulfill the following requirement(s):    Healthy Lifestyle
Pre-requisite / Co- requisite/ Exclusion	APSS students are not allowed to take this subject.  Subject Exclusion: APSS1B12 / APSS285
Assessment Methods	100% Continuous Assessment Ongoing Assessment Class Attendance Group Presentation Written Assignment  • The grade is calcula assigned;	Individual Assessment  20%  10%  50%  atted according to the	Group Assessment  20%

- The completion and submission of all component assignments are required for passing the subject; and
- Student must pass all component(s) if he/she is to pass the subject.

Objectives

It has become a cliché to state that all aspects of everyday life are saturated by media. Despite this the role, and place, of media in everyday life often seems curiously under-examined and taken-for-granted. Media are perhaps, as Croteau and Hoynes point out, 'like the air we breathe, ever present yet rarely considered'. This course seeks to introduce theories and concepts—and give space—so that students can think about the role of media and communications in contemporary culture, society and everyday life.

In order to make connections between media and real people/real life, it is hoped students will reflect upon, and be willing to share, their own experiences with forms of media. Students will develop an 'academic' language with which to discuss the role of media in everyday life and will be encouraged to critically think about the media texts they experience as consumers and, perhaps, as producers of, for example, 'tweets', WhatsApp messages and camera images. Overall, it is hoped that students come to reflect upon the roles that various forms of media (both 'old' and 'new') play in their lives.

This module focuses upon the relationships between media representations and cultures and societies, examining how forms of media function as lenses through which we perceive and understand the world, exploring how representations construct and naturalize social relationships, whilst also considering ways that readers of representations disrupt, negotiate and, perhaps, reconfigure those representations' dominant meanings.

This course is based upon the assumptions that: (mass) media constitute primary symbolic forms in many contemporary cultures and societies; media is an important means by which information, ideas, aesthetic experiences and entertainment are transmitted to citizens and consumers; media is a vital force for social and cultural cohesion and/or exclusion; and is central to contemporary discussion of politics, aesthetics, social identity, cultural rights and so on. Significantly, media is believed to constitute symbolic systems which construct reality rather than simply reflecting it.

Intended Learning Outcomes

Upon completion of the subject, students will be able to:

(Note 1)

- a. Have some understanding of theories, concepts and paradigms essential to the study of media and communications in contemporary culture and society or, put another way, understand media from various theoretical perspectives;
- b. Use relevant 'academic' language to discuss the role of media in everyday life, not only in Hong Kong but also elsewhere in the world:
- c. Apply critical ideas to describe, analyze and assess media texts; understand the role of media in everyday life; and appreciate the interplay between media, power, culture and society; all of which might heighten their ability to make conscious and informed decisions about their own media use; and d. Communicate viewpoints both orally and through written papers

	d. Communicate viewpoints both orany and through written papers
Subject Synopsis/	1. Introduction(s) to (scope of) the Course
Indicative Syllabus	2. What is Media, what does it do and why study it?
111410W01 ( 0 ~ J 11W 010	3. What is everyday life?
(Note 2)	4. Defamiliarizing the Familiar / Making the Peculiar Strange:
	What metaphors can we use to describe media and how do media impact upon everyday life?  5. How are nearly offseted by forms of media?
	<ul><li>5. How are people affected by forms of media?</li><li>6. How do senders (e.g. advertisers) make texts compelling and</li></ul> do media (e.g. advertising) create false needs?
	7. How can we approach / study / read media content?
	8. Are media the sources of integration, promoting fair societies or the tools of powerful elites who use media to create "passive dupes"?
	9. How do forms of media empower or disempower individuals and groups?
	10. Should we view digital life / culture with a utopian or dystopian lens?
	11. Should we be optimistic or pessimistic about Mass Culture / Reality TV?
	12. Does globalization of culture / media result in homogenization?
	13. Conclusions: so what is the role & impact of media in everyday life?
Teaching/Learning	There will be a brief "lecture" each week. This will seek to clarify
Methodology	the main points of the unit / key readings. The teacher will give this lecture but each group will (might) be asked to "lead in" to (Note 3)	this and, if possible, foreshadow some of the key points to be discussed.
	Classes will also contain a session reviewing and developing ideas from the previous class.
	The core of the class will be interactive tutorials, even if we have to do these in a lecture room. These will include some of the following activities:
	Discussions summarizing key / core readings
	Watching, and reflecting upon, videos Guided applied exercises to facilitate students' understanding of,
	and ability to use, ideas, concepts and theories.
	Generally speaking, PowerPoint slides will be available after the class, to encourage note-taking, a valuable skill in itself and to allow the joy of surprise in class.  Please note: For the sessions to be enjoyable and productive, students are expected to study assigned materials before attending classes, and to actively participate and provide input during sessions. That said, participation does not mean simply "talking".

Assessment Methods in Alignment with Intended Learning Outcomes	Specific assessment methods/tasks	% weighting	outc	Intended subject learning outcomes to be assessed (Please tick as appropriate)
(Note 4)			a	b	c	d
	1. Ongoing Assessment	20%				v
	2. Class Attendance	10%	$\sqrt{}$	$\sqrt{}$	$\sqrt{}$	$\sqrt{}$
	3. Group Presentation	20%	$\sqrt{}$	$\sqrt{}$	$\sqrt{}$	$\sqrt{}$
	4. Written Assignment	50%	$\sqrt{}$	$\sqrt{}$	$\sqrt{}$	$\sqrt{}$
	Total	100 %
	For ongoing assessment, students should make a report to summarize, develop and apply the points discussed in class. This should be submitted as one document in the final week. There is no specific word requirement, but students should aim to write at least 300 words for each class.  For written assignments, students are required to construct two reports or one academic paper. These will reflect on issues explored in the course and connect them to everyday life.  For group presentation, it provides opportunities for students to consolidate their knowledge and analyses on different topics covered in the course through a student-centered, interactive and problem-based setting.  The completion and submission of all component assignments are required in order to pass the subject.
Student Study Effort Expected	Class contact:						20.11
-	Lecture / tutorial						39 Hrs.
	Other student study effort:
	Class Preparation / Review						26 Hrs.
	Assignment Preparation  Translation						40 Hrs.
	Total student study effort						105 Hrs.
Reading List and References	Essential

Abercrombie, N. and Longhurst, B. (2007). Dictionary of Media Studies. London: Penguin.

Burton, G. (2005). Media and Society: Critical Perspectives. Maidenhead: Open University Press.

Croteau, D. and Hoynes, W. (2003). Media Society: Industries, Images and Audiences. Thousand Oaks, London and New Delhi: Sage.

Deuze, M. (2012). Media Life. Cambridge: Polity.

Dines, G. and Humez, J.M. eds. (2015). Gender, Race, and Class in Media: A Critical Reader. London: Sage.

Durham, M.G. and Kellner, D.M. eds. (2012). Media and Cultural Studies: Keyworks. Oxford and Malden: Blackwell.

Fuchs, C. (2014). Social Media: A Critical Introduction. London: Sage.

Laughey, D. (2009). Media Studies: Theories and Approaches. Harpenden: Kamera.

Marris, P. and Thornham, S. eds. (2009). Media Studies: A Reader. New York: New York University Press.

Note 1: Intended Learning Outcomes

Intended learning outcomes should state what students should be able to do or attain upon completion of the subject. Subject outcomes are expected to contribute to the attainment of the overall programme outcomes.

Note 2: Subject Synopsis/ Indicative Syllabus

The syllabus should adequately address the intended learning outcomes. At the same time over-crowding of the syllabus should be avoided.

Note 3: Teaching/Learning Methodology

This section should include a brief description of the teaching and learning methods to be employed to facilitate learning, and a justification of how the methods are aligned with the intended learning outcomes of the subject.

Note 4: Assessment Method

This section should include the assessment method(s) to be used and its relative weighting, and indicate which of the subject intended learning outcomes that each method purports to assess. It should also provide a brief explanation of the appropriateness of the assessment methods in assessing the intended learning outcomes.