| Objectives                              | The integrative project is the signpost learning activity for students of the MASW, MSW, MAMH, MAGC & MASPSD programmes. Its objective is to enable students to participate in an independent research/review on a chosen topic within their subject area that suits their learning purpose and need. Students are also expected to implement the project under the guidance of their supervisors to ensure they develop experiences in integrating the different knowledge and skills which they acquired from various subjects in the programme for the purpose of advancing their professional scholarship and competence in the field of social work, guidance, mental health, social policy and social development and related fields of practice.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                            |  |                            |                       |                            |      |
| Intended Learning Outcomes              | In general, this integrative project must reflect evidence of comprehensive knowledge and independent and original thinking to justify the award at Master's level. Upon completion of the subject, students will be able to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>a. engage in independent research on a topic of their own choice relating to social work, counselling, guidance, mental health, social policy and social development that lies within the student’s domain of professional practice and/or interest;</li><li>b. read and deliberate on literature related to the chosen topic;</li><li>c. make integrative linkage between classroom learning and experiences in practice; and</li><li>d. demonstrate the knowledge and competence in setting up their independent research, articulate its significance in relation to a wider intellectual and practice context, to sustain argument and analysis, and to present conclusions for enriching policy or development practice.</li></ul> |  |                            |                       |                            |      |

| Subject Synopsis/Indicative Syllabus                       | Students will be working with a supervisor on a chosen topic that is relevant to their area of study or field of practice. Students are expected to go through the following processes in order to fulfil the requirement of the subject:1. Identifying a topic of interest for review. It can be an area related to daily practice or to a theoretical postulation on practice.2. Selecting and designing an approach to conducting the review.3. Conducting the review.4. Reflecting on the information and experiences generated through the review process.5. Identifying the implications of the major learning gained from the review for social work, guidance, social policy and social development practice and policy.6. Writing up a paper of the review process.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                   |         |   |   |                                   |             |                                                   |  |  |  |   |   |   |   |                            |      |   |   |   |   |       |      |  |  |  |  |

| Teaching/Learning Methodology                                   | Students will receive both group supervision and individual guidance from an instructor in designing and implementing a practice-based review. The aim is for students to generate new theoretical and practical insights that can be applied to their current practice. Students will be guided to make use of the learning gained from the programme. To complete the subject, students are required to submit a review paper of approximately 8,000 words. The specific requirements of the assignment may vary depending on the discipline that the student is studying.                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                      |                                                   |         |   |   |                                   |             |                                                   |  |  |  |   |   |   |   |                            |      |   |   |   |   |       |      |  |  |  |  |
