Objectives	<ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Students should acquire knowledge on a selected range of major constructs and theories in social psychology for explaining social behaviors and relations in social situations. 2. Students should be able to apply such constructs and theories to address selected problems with substantiation from empirical evidence and analytical perspectives acquired from this course.
Intended Learning Outcomes	Upon completion of the subject, students will be able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> a. articulate using major constructs and theories in social psychology to conceive and interpret commonly observed social behaviors and relations in social settings. b. differentiate and compare evidence from contending theories on controversial issues in social psychology and put these arguments in application.

Subject Synopsis/ Indicative Syllabus	Selected social psychological processes will be examined in the context of cognitive processes of the self, action and characteristics of others, environmental and cultural context, as well as biological factors. These processes include: A. Attribution and Impression Formation; B. Affect and Rationality in Social Cognition; C. Attitude Formation, Persuasion and Behavior Change; D. Prejudice and Discrimination. E. Conformity, Compliance and Obedience; F. Groups and Individuals
Teaching/Learning Methodology	Learning Approach: Input Process <table border="1" data-bbox="389 719 1390 913"> <tr> <td>Lectures & tutorials</td> <td>27 hours (3hrs × 10)</td> </tr> <tr> <td>Seminar presentations</td> <td>12 hours (3hrs × 4)</td> </tr> <tr> <td>Private study sessions</td> <td>Equivalent to 2-4 hours per week of reading and writing or a total of about 30-60 effort hours</td> </tr> </table> Output Process <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Assessment of content knowledge attainment through the web-based quiz. 2. Seminar presentation (Each group is to present for 20 minutes and lead a class discussion for 10 minutes). 3. An individual paper based on the self-selected topic presented in the seminar. Teaching & Learning Methods: The major chunks of content for the course will be delivered in lectures, in the use of web-assisted platform and students' active learning will be stimulated through participating in discussion both on and off-line, conducting projects and presentation in seminars. The teaching and learning activities of the subject are further empowered by the web deliverables of this course. The web-assisted features are designed to deepen the understanding of the students to the subject, to encourage self-directed learning, and to reduce the time or place constraint on learning. Active participation of students is promoted through encouraging them to use the communication tools of Learn@PolyU in exchanging their points of views. Students will be advised to read the recommended textbook and supplementary readings on controversial issues in social psychology as well as to search relevant information from the library and the internet in preparing their assignments and in their private study. The subject teacher and the tutor will be available for students' consultation on problems in the study if such request arises. Feedback to students' progress in the subject will be provided from the results of the continuous assessment and some of them can be instantly accessed through taking the web-based self-assessment quiz.	Lectures & tutorials	27 hours (3hrs × 10)	Seminar presentations	12 hours (3hrs × 4)	Private study sessions	Equivalent to 2-4 hours per week of reading and writing or a total of about 30-60 effort hours

- The grade is calculated according to the percentage assigned;
- The completion and submission of all component assignments are required for passing the subject; and
- Students must receive an overall pass grade when all components are combined in order to pass the subject.

Explanation of the appropriateness of the assessment methods in assessing the intended learning outcomes:

Method of assessment

Web-based Multiple Choice Questions (for practice only)

The web-based quiz, as part of the coursework, aims at consolidating students' comprehension of the essential and content knowledge blocks in the respective units. Immediate feedback on performance and answers will be provided based on repeated trials on their quiz exercise. This will also contribute to their class quiz towards the end of the semester.

Application Journals (15%)

Students will be asked to keep a reflective journal (one entry per month for 3 months, to a total of 3 graded entries) in order to (a) facilitate the learning of social psychological concepts, and (b) apply the course concepts to their daily social experiences to promote self-knowledge. Students may apply four cognitive operations (labeling, explaining, making inferences, and self-

	assessing) to each of the three different aspects of the self (thoughts, feelings, and behaviors). Students can write their reactions and responses to lectures and readings, give real-life examples of their own to explain the concepts and theories, or indicate how this knowledge could be applicable to their work setting or daily life. Presentation (20%) and Written Report (30%) Seminar presentation is made up of a group presentation and a group written report of the seminar presentation topic. Seminar presentation grades will be determined by the subject teacher, tutor, and students' peer evaluation according to a set of criteria. Grades for the written report will be determined by two main characteristics: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. How the controversial issue is formulated and the depth of understanding the views chosen as reflected by the literature reviewed 2. Critical discussion of the issue at hand on theoretical or other local empirical studies, personal and/or practice experiences <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The grade is calculated according to the percentage assigned; • The completion and submission of all component assignments are required for passing the subject.
