	a. Students are required to make a presentation based on their final paper. Final Paper: The final paper is an attempt to discuss and analyze a particular welfare policy area that is related to one of the following target populations: families and women, domestic violence victims, new immigrants, persons with disabilities, the youth, ex-offenders, street sleepers, the elderly or the poor. Students can also choose a welfare policy area that is within a smaller scope in the above populations, such as single parents within the families and women category. The final paper should contain the following elements: (i) philosophy and theory/concepts of the welfare policy; (ii) description of the current situation, including the profile of the beneficiary, mode of service delivery, and scope of services; (iii) pros and cons of the policy; and (iv) your view on the way forward. The final paper should contain reference, typed in font 12, double-spaced in format. In assessing the final paper, originality of critical thinking and basic academic requirements such as literature review, analytical application of concepts and theories and the ability to draw logical conclusions with substantiation are used as criteria.
