

Maxwell Unfolding a New Adventure at Aston University

Please join us in congratulating our PhD graduate, Maxwell on his new appointment as lecturer at Aston University in UK!

“I am extremely grateful to announce that I have officially accepted a full-time tenure-track faculty position as a Lecturer in Construction and QS in the School of Engineering and Applied Science at Aston University, Birmingham, UK. I’m thankful to everyone who made this journey a success and excited for the next phase of my career.” says Maxwell.

Dr. Maxwell F. Antwi-Afari attained both his BSc in Construction Technology and Management (First Class Honours) and MPhil in Building Technology from Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology (KNUST), Kumasi-Ghana in 2012 and 2015, respectively. Through a Postgraduate Studentship Scholarship, Maxwell obtained his PhD in Construction Information Technology at our Department (BRE) in 2019.

After the PhD study, Maxwell worked as a Postdoctoral Research Fellow at BRE. He has published over 10 SCI journal papers and participated in writing competitive research grants. His stunning efforts have contributed to the well-deserved accolades, including the Outstanding Student Project Award 2018/2019 academic year by the Hong Kong Ergonomics Society (HKES) in May 2019, Grand Winner of Occupational Safety and Health Best Project Scholarship for 2017/2018 academic year organized by the statutory Occupational Safety and Health Council, Hong Kong in January 2019, Commendation Award in The Chartered Institute of Building (CIOB) (Hong Kong) Outstanding Paper Award in September 2018, etc.

Maxwell is very much looking forward to continued excellence in teaching, research and service. His teaching and research interests focus on construction management and engineering, construction health and safety, construction ergonomics, digital technologies and innovations (e.g., building information modelling (BIM), wearable sensors, robotics), technology transfer in construction and biomechanical analysis.

We wish Maxwell a new adventure filled with accomplishments and joy!
