Subject Code	ENGL1CN19
Subject Title	Introduction to African societies
Credit Value	3
Level	1
Pre-requisite / Co-requisite/ Exclusion	None
Objectives	As a major provider of natural resources and a fast-developing consumer market, the African continent has become a major destination for Chinese investment. Meanwhile, African countries have increasingly turned to China at the economic and political level. In this context, it is becoming critically important to develop well-informed reflections on Africa, its cultural and linguistic diversity, as well as the unique socio-political challenges that it is facing. This subject gives students a comprehensive introduction to the societies of Africa, as well as to its economic life and long-term development potential. Students are first initiated to the historical background of Africa's diverse cultures, languages, and societies. Following a presentation of Africa's colonial period and colonial legacies, students are offered in-depth perspectives on the defining features of Africa's economy and its intrinsic relation to specific internal and external socio-political factors. Importantly, the subject keeps using Asia as a point of reference, and places emphasis on Sino-African relations. The subject will especially be of interest to students of social science, business, education, and language.
Intended Learning Outcomes (Note 1)	Upon completion of the subject, students will be able to: <ol style="list-style-type: none">a. identify and understand key themes and challenges facing Africa at the social, political and economic levels,b. discuss issues relating to Africa as a multicultural environment,c. discuss topics pertaining to African foreign relations in general, and to Sino-African relations in particulard. understand and discuss the notions of nation-building and socio-economic development in relation to the African environmente. apply their knowledge of Africa to their own field of study,f. show leadership by producing informed arguments on Africa as an economic partner and destination for Asian investment.

Subject Synopsis/ Indicative Syllabus (Note 2)	The subject is divided into two focus areas, namely, ‘general background to Africa’ and ‘current issues and debates’. Each focus area is reflected in the succession of weekly topics: General background to Africa <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Precolonial Africa and its civilizations (until the late 19th century) • Africa and imperial expansion: The continent’s colonial experience • The post-independence period and the challenge of nation-building • Africa’s socio-demographic profile (with focus on urbanization dynamics) • Africa’s cultural landscape (with focus on traditional kinship models, religions, traditional and modern art forms) • Language questions in Africa: Indigenous languages, ex-colonizers’ languages, new languages • Afrocentrism: Defining African-ness in the contemporary world Current issues and debates <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Conflict and transformation: Africa’s political culture • Contemporary patterns of social mobility in Africa • Post-independence Africa’s foreign relations and their impact • Africa’s environment: Growth and degradation • The African diaspora: An Asian perspective • Taking stock: Long-term outlooks for Africa
Teaching/Learning Methodology (Note 3)	The subject will be taught through a blend of lectures and interactive seminars where students will engage and discuss course content and apply new skills and theoretical concepts. Students will have the opportunity to learn about, and critically discuss in comparative context with Hong Kong and China, key social, political and economic trends in Africa. Learning is supplemented by active participation in online class discussions.

Note 1: Intended Learning Outcomes

Intended learning outcomes should state what students should be able to do or attain upon completion of the subject. Subject outcomes are expected to contribute to the attainment of the overall programme outcomes.

Note 2: Subject Synopsis/ Indicative Syllabus

The syllabus should adequately address the intended learning outcomes. At the same time over-crowding of the syllabus should be avoided.

Note 3: Teaching/Learning Methodology

This section should include a brief description of the teaching and learning methods to be employed to facilitate learning, and a justification of how the methods are aligned with the intended learning outcomes of the subject.

Note 4: Assessment Method

This section should include the assessment method(s) to be used and its relative weighting, and indicate which of the subject intended learning outcomes that each method purports to assess. It should also provide a brief explanation of the appropriateness of the assessment methods in assessing the intended learning outcomes.
