As a university level educator for the past 30+ years, I continue to (re)discover that learning to (un)learn is all about opening us to 'otherness': Other forms of reasoning, other forms of logics, other forms of explanations, and to other ways of knowing. To take your learning to the next level, you have to come prepared to engage, and in this process, help make this world a better place.

The University of British Columbia is known for its research excellence, diverse academic programmes, and its stunning campus in Vancouver. The Vancouver Summer Program lets you experience a different culture and teaching style at the Sauder School of Business.

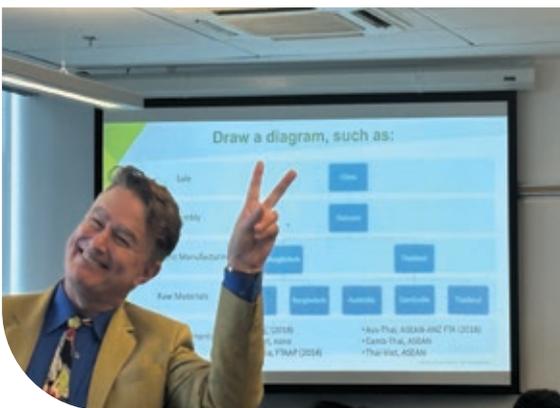

My courses in International Business and International Marketing were practical, and the teaching approach was distinct from Hong Kong. I enjoyed the polite, friendly, and relaxed North American lifestyle and made friends from all over the world.

I used my free time to visit the Columbia Icefield, Banff National Park, and Niagara Falls with friends. Canada's natural landscapes are magnificent.

Ji Chenhan (2024 Graduate)

I was incredibly fortunate to attend the summer school at the University of British Columbia. I took courses in International Business and International Marketing to broaden my understanding of global business strategies and market dynamics. Over the three weeks of the programme, the school organised insightful lectures, field trips, and a variety of evening activities.

In addition to the academic experience, my classmates and I also travelled to Calgary, Toronto, and Quebec. The scenery in these places was breathtakingly beautiful. This experience was truly invaluable, providing me with the opportunity to not only expand my knowledge but also to meet people from all over the world from diverse backgrounds.

TAN Hanzhi (2024 Graduate)

“ Attending the Vancouver Summer Program (VSP) at the University of British Columbia (UBC) was a marvellous and unforgettable experience for me. During the programme, I got to know people from all over the world. Over the four weeks of studies at UBC, I joined many activities organised by the VSP volunteers. There are so many squirrels living on the UBC campus, so don't forget to say hello when you see them on your way to class! Getting to know and experience so many cultural differences was even more rewarding than what I learned in class. Cultural differences are fun because they're so new and hard to learn about just from the internet or books. You really need to experience them firsthand. ”

ZENG Weilin (2024 Graduate)
