Dear Academy Fellows:

It is humbling to realize that this is the last newsletter column I will write as Academy President. There are many things that I would like to say. Obviously, I want to thank you for the opportunity you have given me over the past four years. I also want to thank you for the unconditional generosity of your support and encouragement, even through my many mistakes and missteps. I feel good about our accomplishments and progress and about the Academy’s future. I’m excited about the slate of candidates evolving for our upcoming election. Perhaps most importantly, I feel good about the friendships, both personal and professional, that the Academy has allowed me to enjoy. So, please accept my thanks and continue your support the next executive.

Much has happened over the past few months. As reported in our last newsletter, the Academy held a very successful biennial conference in Turkey. Following the conference, a bylaws election has been completed, adjusting the membership election process. The bylaw changes resulted from our Business Meeting in Turkey. Thanks to everybody that worked on this process both during the conference and the subsequent election.
Per the process accepted in Turkey, we are reconsidering the scholars nominated this past year. We are in the process of preparing and will be conducting a re-vote the results of which will be interpreted via our new bylaws. Please participate fully in this process, reading the nominee materials and voting either yes or no.

Finally, I am very pleased to announce that the Academy has accepted a bid from the Gobierno de La Rioja to host our 2009 conference in Spain. More details concerning dates and program planning will be provided in the future. Our sincere thanks to Jafar Jafari for helping to create this proposal.

Again, thank you for the opportunity to have served as your President. It has been a privilege and great pleasure.

Best wishes
Rick Perdue
As announced by email on 16 October, 2007, a total of 33 Academy fellows submitted successful ballots for bylaw changes. Three of the proposed items were approved and one was disapproved. You can view the updated bylaws by visiting our website: www.tourismscholars.org

1. Article III, Section 2. It is recommended that the words “who are residing in countries other than their own” be inserted before the words “biennially for membership by submitting”.

16 Approved, 17 Disapproved; Not supported

2. Article III, Section 3. It is recommended that the sentences “The Membership Committee shall biennially review the qualification of all candidates proposed for membership, submit a ballot and appropriate materials of each candidate with its recommendations to all fellows, and report the results of the secret balloting to the President.” be replaced with All candidates proposed for membership shall be invited for presentation at the biennial Academy Meeting. At the closing Academy business meeting, the Academy Fellows will review and discuss the qualifications of all candidates proposed for membership and vote on each individual. The result of this vote is not binding but will be submitted to all Fellows to inform them when the official candidate vote is taken (within 2 months after the conclusion of the conference).

Rationale: This would provide a platform for fellows and candidates to get to know each other before the election takes place plus it allows for a thorough vetting of the candidates qualifications at our business meeting.

30 Approved; 3 Disapproved; Supported

3. Article III, Section 4. It is recommended that the words “at least two-thirds (2/3) votes of the total Academy membership voting” be replaced with Candidates shall be selected by at least two-thirds (2/3) votes and minimum of fifty (50) percent of voting fellows plus one (1). Only “yes” and “no” voting options are permissible.

33 Approved; 0 Disapproved; Supported

4. Article V, Section 2. It is recommended that the Membership Committee be eliminated.

31 Approved; 2 Disapproved; Supported
Richard Butler – Richard and a Canadian colleague (Professor T Hinch, University of Alberta, who was a guest at the Academy meeting in Turkey) have just had published an edited volume TOURISM AND INDIGENOUS PEOPLES: ISSUES AND IMPLICATIONS, by Elsevier/Butterworth-Heinemann, containing twenty invited essays discussing the relationship between indigenous peoples and their involvement in tourism. Several members of the Academy are contributors to the volume.

Richard was a keynote speaker at the ATLAS (Association for Tourism and Leisure Education) annual conference held in Portugal, 8-11th September, 2007. His paper was entitled "Destinations Revisited: Perspectives on Developing and managing tourist areas".

Richard was a keynote speaker at a conference on Nature and Tourism: Tools for Sustainability held in the Arctic Institute, Rovaneimi, Finland, May 2007. His paper was entitled Tourism Destination Development and the Environment.

Richard was a keynote speaker at the European Tourism and the Environment Conference held in Dublin, 11-12 October, 2007; his paper was entitled Recycling the Cycle: The TALC and Sustainability in the 21st Century.

Richard also has a chapter in a new book in which members may be interested, namely ROYAL TOURISM about to be published by Channelview Publications, and edited by Philip Long, which examines the links between royalty and the development of tourist destinations over time in a number of destinations.

Richard has been selected as an international expert by the Australian government to serve as an external examiner in that country’s Research Quality Framework audit in 2008. He will serve on the Economics, Commerce and Management review panel that includes Tourism and Hospitality Management. He is one of the few international experts so selected to help in this major academic audit, which will have major implications for the future of Australian university research”.

Erik Cohen – Erik has completed a book of case studies entitled “Exploration it Thai Tourism”, to be published in the TSSSeires in 2008. His recent publications include: “‘Authenticity’ in Tourism Studies: après la lutte”, Tourism Recreation Research, 32(2), 2007, 75-82, and “From Benefactor to Tourist: Santa on Cards from Thailand” Annals of Tourism Research, 34(3), 2007, 690-708. He is currently engaged in a comprehensive study of “Animals in Thai Tourism”, a topic which has been given scant attention in the literature. Any suggestions or ideas re possible cooperation will be much appreciated.

Chris Cooper – Chris’s affiliation and address will be changed and effective by the end of November.

Donald Getz – Donald is a Professor in the University of Calgary's Haskayne School of Business and a Visiting Professor at Gothenburg University Sweden. During a recent visit to Gothenburg a launch party was held for their newly funded Centre for Tourism. With multi-year financial commitments from the city's DMO, Göteborg and Co., and the West Sweden Tourism Board, the research centre is poised to become a major source of academic and industry-relevant research. New contributing industry partners are being lined up, so that considerable growth in the Centre's capacity is expected.

A unique aspect of the Centre is that academics and graduate students will be able to work with an existing group of professional tourism consultants and researchers who are already established in Sweden. Offices will be shared with this TUI group, which was established by industry partners to help them meet the need for applied research.

Professor Tommy Andersson will be heading up the Centre for Tourism, and he and Donald have been collaborating for five years on family business and festival-related research projects. Lena Mossberg and Mia Larson have also been working with Donald on various research projects, and this productive collaboration will continue.

John Hunt – John and his spouse, Dr. Kristin DeNure Hunt, have been assisting the Belize Audubon Society in strategic planning. As a non-governmental organization, the Belize Audubon Society manages 9 protected areas in Belize including national parks, barrier reefs, and other protected areas. In addition, John was recently appointed to the Development Committee of the College of Natural Resources at Utah State University.

Peter Murphy – Peter has just had a book published by Elsevier. The book is an extension on the theme of the presentation I made at the Academy meeting in Beijing. Although it is copyright dated as 2008 it is available now. The full details are: Peter Murphy (2008) The Business of Resort Management. Oxford: Butterworth-Heinemann Elsevier.

Gareth Shaw – Dr. Adrian Bailey as been appointed as Research Fellow to work with Gareth and Allan Williams on their project, Internationalisation and Innovation in the Service Sector: the role of internal migrants and UK Hotels. The research is funded by ESRC and Dr. Bailey will work at the School of Business and Management at the University of Exeter. Gareth as been awarded a grant from the British Academy to research low cost airlines and the environment. The research will take a behavioural approach and examine changing attitudes towards the use of low cost flights.

Peter Williams – Peter is currently completing a 6 year Aboriginal tourism research and policy development program that has culminated in the creation of an Aboriginal Tourism Blueprint Strategy. Guided and framed by Aboriginal leaders in British Columbia. It details a broad range of strategic programs and tactics for building the capacity of Aboriginal peoples to deliver culturally appropriate forms of tourism in this region. The Strategy has been integrated into formal policy directives of provincial and federal government agencies and will lead to several joint governments - Aboriginal Tourism Association initiatives. It is being heralded as a leading Canadian initiative in this field of tourism.

The Canadian Chapter of the Travel and Tourism Association recently awarded a new doctoral research award to Peter Johnson of McGill University in Montreal, Quebec. Sponsored by Judy Rogers of Research Solutions, the Peter W Williams Ph.D. Award for the Advancement of Multi-disciplinary Tourism Research is intended to encourage more cross-pollination of concepts and methods in tourism. The award not only recognizes the talents and promise of an emerging researcher who is undertaking a truly multi-disciplinary investigation, but it also flags the fact that many committed individuals from across Canada have set a firm foundation on which his work can be embraced and celebrated.
News from Nelson Graburn,

I was very sorry not to be able to attend the Academy meeting in Turkey, but it fell exactly on the same days at graduation ceremonies at U C Berkeley. I was invited to give the Graduation Address and I had four competed PhDs to “hood” and could not miss the occasion. So for those who want to catch up on my news, read on.

In May 2006, I was awarded the Distinguished Mentorship Award by the Graduate Division at the Univ. of California, Berkeley, for my forty years of supervision of graduate students. Three of my present students – Naomi Leite, Stephanie Hom Cary and Charles Carroll - started the Tourism Studies Working Group at Berkeley: this has been very successful in attracting visiting scholars for talks, and we have held two conferences, on tourism theory in 2005, and Tourism in Cuba and Mexico in 2007. (See www.tourismstudies.org)

The same day as the Mentorship Award, I flew off to Tehran to give the paper:” Tourism and Handicrafts: Modernity and Identity in the Global Marketplace.” At the conference “Tourism and Handicrafts”, Organized by Iran’s Cultural Heritage and Tourism Organization and the World Tourism Organization, IRIB International Conference Center, Tehran, 13-15th May

I flew to Yunnan for “fieldwork” visiting two of my graduate students, one from Berkeley and the other from Duke U. 27 June – 10 July. I visited colleagues at the University and gave a talk: “The Preservation of Tradition.” Lecture to the Department of Anthropology and the Anthropology Museum, Yunnan National University, Kunming, 29th June, and we flew to Chengdu for informal consulting on two potential major tourism developments. I returned via Guangdong, visiting Prof. Ning Wang at Zhongshan University, and took the train to Hong Kong where I spent time with Prof. Sidney Cheung of the Chinese University HK, and visited his tourism and heritage field sites in the New Territories.

Later in the summer I flew to Durban, South Africa for the International Sociological Association (24-29 July), RC50, the Research Committee on International Tourism, to give the paper “Hegemonic Paradigms: East Meets West” about the dominant influence of Western theories on Japanese analyses of tourism. My wife and I joined tourism and gender anthropologist Peggy Swain in driving first to an NPO luxury game park where the profits are used for building schools and clinics and for training in computer use and repair, and then across the country to Capetown. My wife and I spent a week in Botswana visiting a Berkeley student doing her PhD on the relation between the local San (‘Bushmen’) people and their cultural history to the ancient pictographs at the UNESCO world heritage site at Tsodilo Hills, returning via ecotourism camps on the edge of the Okovango.

As the autumn term began for my 43rd and last year of full time teaching at Berkeley, I attended the International Conference "Of Asian Origin: Rethinking Tourism in Contemporary Asia," organized by the Asia Research Institute of the National University of Singapore, 7-9 September 2006, to which a number of Berkeley graduate students were also invited. I gave a paper in the students only special sessions on "Questions of Methodology: Researching Tourism in Asia," and another of developments in Japanese domestic tourism. And at the end of the term, I attended the IASTE (International Association for the study of Traditional Environment s) in Bangkok, 15-18 December 2006 giving a paper on “Hypertraditions and Hyperreality: The Old and New in Japan.” There I met amongst others Erik Cohen who now lives in Bangkok and Mike Robinson of Sheffield/Leeds

I attended a conference on Alternative Development on July 11-12, 2007 to honor the 80th Birthday of His Majesty the King of Thailand, giving a paper entitled “The Middle Way: Village Development or Dependence.” Concerning different strategies of ethnic minority development through tourism in rural China.

Since mid-July I have been living in Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul in southern Brazil, with a four month visiting professorship at the Federal University, teaching a seminar “Tourism, Art and Modernity.” I was invited to address the conference: "Refletindo sobre o passado e o futuro da antropologia no presente." organized by Professor Carlos Steil, Universidade Rio Grande do Sul, Porto Alegre. VII Reuniao Antropologias do Mercosul, 23-26 July. During my stay in Brazil, I have traveled a lot. I gave a public lecture, “‘Existe uma Antropologia do Turismo? Tendências Contemporâneas.” At Universidade Federal do Campino Grande, in Paraiba state in October, and another on exhibiting the arts of contemporary indigenous peoples, especially those produced for tourism, at X Reunio de Antropologos do Norte e do Nordeste in Aracaju, in Sergipe state.

After teaching a short course at the University of Caxias in the highly touristic and wine growing area – of German and Italian immigrant heritage - in Rio Grande do Sul state, my wife and I traveled to Caxambu in Minas Gerais state, where I gave the keynote address “Reconstructing Tradition: Tourism and Modernity and China and Japan.” At the biennial Brazilian ANPOCS (Associação Nacional de Pos-Graduação e Pesquisa em Ciências Sociais) meeting,

I return to Berkeley in mid-November, and give a seminar at Harvard University on Heritage and Creativity (focusing on Japan and China) and the same week a paper on “Heritage Entrepreneurs” at the meetings of the American Anthropological Association. In mid-December I return to China to give a keynote address “Ethnic Tourism in China in Global Perspective.” (Erik Cohen will give another) at the International Conference on “Tourism and Indigenous People/Minorities in Multi-cultural Societies” 22-23 December 2007 in Xishuangbanna Dai Autonomous Region in southern Yunnan. About this time I am expecting a collection of my papers to come out as the book: Selected Papers on the Anthropology of Tourism. [旅游人类学论文集 in Chinese] Guilin: Guanxi University Press

In July 2008 I will return to China where I have organized a 30-person session “The Articulation of Indigenous People/Minorities and Ethnic tourism within East Asia.” for the International Congress of Anthropological and Ethnological Sciences, in Kunming, Yunnan.

My status at Berkeley is semi-retirement: I am POGS, Professor of the Graduate School, but I do not teach regular courses. I am in the process of being hired by the International Institute for Culture, Tourism and Development, London Metropolitan University as a part-time Senior Professor. So, in spite of the plunging US dollar I may be able to afford to visit my family in England!

Hoping to see you soon.

Experiential Training Exercises in Tourism Decision-Making/Management
International Journal of Culture, Tourism, and Hospitality Research
Deadline 15 April 2008

Why do lots of Germans travel to Britain each year but most Brits shun Germany? What can German tourism executives do to effectively encourage Brits to visit? How do you go about effectively answering these questions?

Globally, tourism is an $800 billion (USD) industry that dramatically affects many national, regional, and local economies. Given the importance of tourism to so many destinations, both executives and students of tourism management need a high level of experiential decision-making training in achieving effective outcomes for tourism marketing programs. Surprisingly, applied learning tools that bridge gaps between theory and practice in this field are dwarfed by those found in the general field of marketing. To help close these gaps, the International Journal of Culture, Tourism and Hospitality Research announces a call for a special issue on training exercises for Tourism decision-making/management.

The development of training exercises provide opportunities for applied learning. These exercises should include both an introduction that describes the general theory or research issue as well as a discussion section that explains possible solution(s). Topics of particular interest include the following areas:

- Scanning and sense making of tourist behavior and management actions
- Planning tourism strategies
- Implementation of tourism programs or activities
- Evaluating effectiveness and efficiency of tourism program actions/processes
- Evaluating tourism program performance outcomes
- Administering tourism programs.

Submission guidelines and further information: Contributors may access the IJCTHR homepage at http://www.emeraldinsight.com/info/journals/ijcthr/ijcthr.jsp for comprehensive authors’ guidelines. Please contact Drew Martin (drmartin@hawaii.edu) with questions and to receive example articles published in prior issues of the IJCTHR that include tourism decision-making experiential training exercises—one of these exercises includes a tourism strategy practicum on the decisions and actions necessary to encourage Brits to visit Germany.

CHME Research Conference 2008

Hospitality, Tourism and Leisure

May 14th – 16th 2008, Glasgow

Promoting excellence in research, teaching and learning

CHME (Council for Hospitality Management Education) is a voluntary non-profit making body which represents those UK universities and colleges offering courses in the management of hospitality businesses.

Hosted by the Department of Hospitality and Tourism Management, Strathclyde Business School, University of Strathclyde, the 2008 CHME Hospitality, Tourism and Leisure Conference aims to promote and enhance the quality of research, pedagogy, learning and teaching in hospitality, leisure and tourism studies.

From your host
The Department of Hospitality and Tourism Management (formerly, The Scottish Hotel School) at the University of Strathclyde, proud host of the CHME Research Conference 2008, is delighted to invite you to the City of Glasgow. As your host we are determined to ensure that we provide you with a rewarding experience, both academically and socially, within a city environment that embraces the best of its past with the exciting promise of its future. Glasgow: Scotland with style!
Conference location and social events
The historic ‘Teacher Building’ located in Glasgow’s city centre and surrounded with a range of accommodation options is the venue for the 2008 conference. On the first evening of the conference, there will be the formal conference dinner and a ceilidh which will be held at ‘St Andrews in the Square’, situated beside the historic Glasgow Green. The second evening commences with a civic reception hosted by Glasgow City Council located within the splendid City Chambers on George Square. This drinks reception is followed by a choice of dining experiences within the nearby Merchant Square located in the centre of Glasgow’s vibrant Merchant City quarter.

2008 APacCHRIE Conference & THE-ICE International Panel of Experts Forum

Perth, Western Australia
May 21 – 25, 2008
The Sheraton Perth Hotel

Call for Papers

The 2008 APacCHRIE Conference & THE-ICE International Panel of Experts Forum invites papers, abstracts and presentation proposals with relevance to hospitality, tourism, and event management in the Asia-Pacific. The theme of the conference is, ‘Developing & Delivering Industry-relevant Research and Education’. The conference organizing committee invites hospitality, tourism and events researchers, educators, as well as government and industry practitioners to submit refereed research and working papers to the 2008 APacCHRIE Conference and THE-ICE International Panel of Experts Forum. In addition, this year a Symposium Theme will be included and offers delegates the opportunity to organise panel, roundtable, special-interest group and workshop sessions.

Refereed (Full Paper) Submissions - due Monday 25 February 2008

Submissions of papers are required to be either conceptually or empirically based and will be submitted for a twenty (20) minute stand-up presentation.

All submissions for Refereed Papers are subject to a double blind review process. The 2008 APacCHRIE Paper Review Committee is responsible for ensuring a high quality and reliable reviewing process, that ensures each paper is assigned a number and the identity of the author(s) is not revealed; and an independent evaluation is completed by 2 (two) anonymous referees who are experts in their field.

Conceptually-based papers seek to develop a fuller understanding of the tourism and hospitality industries and education by building on existing knowledge.

Empirically-based papers are original research to test or develop a theory or make a new contribution to the knowledge base of the field.

Abstract Submissions may be used to present works in progress and may be conceptually or empirically-based.

The 2008 APacCHRIE Paper Review Committee will conduct a blind refereed screening of all abstracts.

Symposium Submissions - due Monday 10 March 2008

The Symposium Track is a multi-dimensional channel to share a wide variety of industry and educational knowledge and experience. This is a useful channel to report on the latest trends in hospitality and tourism. Symposium submissions can be used to inform others about cutting-edge technology and the necessary skills to advance within the profession. Sessions can be created to discuss the challenges and achievements of educating students working within the industry and for other industry-related experiences. This channel is used to contribute to our profession’s body of knowledge through the sharing of unique and timely findings.

Symposium submissions are encouraged to be submitted as a presentation proposal, either as an individual or as part of a group. To build a quality conference program, all submissions are reviewed and evaluated by the Conference Paper Review Committee. The evaluation process is competitive as time will only permit so many of these sessions.
