Biography

Zowie Broach is currently serving as the Head of Fashion, Royal College of Art which is ranked no. 1 art and design school in the world by QS. Broach is also a co-founder and designer of British fashion house Boudicca. Started in 1997 as a purely artistic expression, showing in art galleries and other exhibition spaces, the brand has since garnered international plaudits for its visionary approach to fashion.

A graduate of both Plymouth (Fine Art) and Middlesex (Fashion Textiles), Broach's 12 years as a fashion educator has included eight years at Westminster, teaching at both BA and Master's level, as well as periods at Parsons The New School for Design in New York, SIAC in Chicago, Bezalel Academy of Arts and Design, Jerusalem, and the RCA. Between 2009 and 2011 she was Designer in Residence at London College of Fashion, a role that incorporated talks, lectures and research and most recently as Senior Researcher in Creative Practice.
