Gongyeh: an Online Presentation Assessment Platform

Enhancing presentation skills with audience feedback for maximized learning outcomes

Teachers often take a combination of assessment measures to determine students' learning progress, and presentation is one of them. It is also an effective way to develop students' communication skills. Gongyeh, an online presentation assessment platform, is designed for students to review their presentation performance. Assessed with web browsers or a dedicated mobile application, it supports both in-class live presentation and after-class video submission.

Teachers can customize the marking rubrics, while students can evaluate the performance of one another, participate in discussions and raise questions. Presenters can review their presentation recordings and view the synchronized anonymous comments in order to evaluate and improve their performance. The platform is great for enhancing classroom participation and interactivity, hence maximizing learning effectiveness inside and outside the classroom.
