Student Study Effort Expected	This subject will be assessed through: One individual assignment (a student's self-appraisal supported by evidence, e.g., activity records and artifacts), one group presentation (a student's understanding of evolving roles of business professionals in real-world case scenarios), and a test.  Students are to reflect on at least three of the topics shared and elaborate on how they inform and/or inspire their career aspirations. They are also expected to reflect on how their university education (and beyond) can help them explore the different career paths identified. The individual reflective essay should be 1,800-2,000 words in length.  The group presentation aims to examine students' understanding of how the roles of business professionals evolve and develop in real-world scenarios. Based on real-life cases, each group discusses business professionals' important roles interdisciplinary connections, future trends, challenges, and opportunities in different settings.  A final test in online mode will be scheduled in Week 13 or after, which includes multiple choices, matching, fill-in-the-blanks, and true/false questions that cover the 12 weeks of lecture content. The test aims to ensure students' comprehensive understanding of the lecture content and achievement of the intended learning outcomes.  Students are required to attend the weekly tutorial and participate actively in class discussions. To demonstrate students' self-regulation and autonomous learning ability, they are expected to prepare discussion materials as instructed by the tutor before each tutorial.						ne group ressionals e on how pected to plore the e 1,800 - the roles Based on ant roles, unities in includes that cover rehensive learning y in class learning
