The Master of Science (MSc) in Global Hospitality Business (MGH) is a unique programme offered jointly by three top hospitality institutions: EHL Hospitality Business School (EHL), the School of Hotel and Tourism Management (SHTM) of The Hong Kong Polytechnic University (PolyU), and Conrad N. Hilton College of Global Hospitality Leadership of The University of Houston (UH). It provides students with an exceptional opportunity to experience the rich cultures of three continents by spending one semester in each partner institution.

Led by top scholars from three prestigious institutions and supported by industry professionals globally, the programme aims to nurture industry leaders, provide in-depth global insights and prepare them for the challenges of running an international business. This first-of-its-kind global programme allows students around the world to join a talented cohort to exchange and refine their hospitality philosophy, develop international perspectives, and become future business leaders in a multicultural environment, shaping the future of the global hospitality business.

The programme offers students unparalleled opportunities for professional growth, networking with top industry leaders, and access to a vast alumni network across all three institutions. Upon successfully completing the programme, students will be awarded an MGH degree from the home institution and a prestigious "Certificate of Completion" from the other partner institutions.
