Code:	JRMP2024_12
School / Department:	Department of Rehabilitation Sciences
Name of Research Team Member(s):	Dr Cynthia Y.Y. Lai, Associate Professor Dr Trevor W.K. Yung, Educational Psychologist
Research Topic:	Sluggish cognitive tempo symptoms in young people
Short Description of the Research Project:	Sluggish Cognitive Tempo (SCT) is considered a new psychological disorder. The symptoms of SCT, which include daydreaming, mental confusion and fogginess, hypoactivity and drowsiness, may affect the learning and social participation of young people with this condition. This project will aim to establish a local norm of a rating scale measuring the symptoms of SCT. The participating students will have the opportunity to learn how to administer neuropsychological tests and understand how neuropsychological deficits can affect the school performance of young people. The participating students will also be engaged under supervision in various aspects of the research process, including the literature review, subject recruitment, data collection and data analysis.
